

What you need to know to apply for an Administrative Subdivision

PLEASE NOTE: Your application, if approved, may result in a change in permitted land use. All applications will require review for compliance with current Greene County Zoning and Subdivision Regulations. To make the necessary investigations, Greene County staff will need access to the property under review to make certain determinations, including but not limited to: storm water runoff, slope, site distance, and setbacks. By signing and submitting this application for processing, the owner grants written permission for Greene County employees and their authorized agents to enter owner(s) premises and conduct all necessary investigations and tests to report the result of the on-site study to the Planning and/or Board of Zoning Adjustment or County Commission.

A number of other organizations and agencies may be given notice of your application, for any review comments they may have. These organizations may desire access to the property to conduct any investigations, but the owner(s) signature does NOT grant permission for these other organizations to enter the property. Such non-county organizations will be required to make individual arrangements with the owner(s) for access to the property. All owner(s) should be aware that a delay in review by a non-county organization or agency may result in a delay in the process.
