Personal Property and Business Assessment list deadline May 1
Assessor launches a new tool to provide assessment status.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo - Greene County Assessor Brent Johnson is reminding Greene County residents and business owners to make sure they have submitted their 2023 Personal Property and Business Assessment lists by May 1 to avoid late assessment penalties. Second notice postcards were mailed to Greene County residents and Business owners who had not yet returned their 2023 Personal Property and Business Assessments by the March 1, 2023, deadline.

Johnson's office first mailed assessment lists to county residents and businesses in early January. Those who had not already returned their list by the March 1 deadline received a second notice from Johnson's office. "I want to make sure everyone has the opportunity to return their lists by May 1 to avoid late assessment penalties which range from $15 to $105, depending on assessed value," Johnson said.

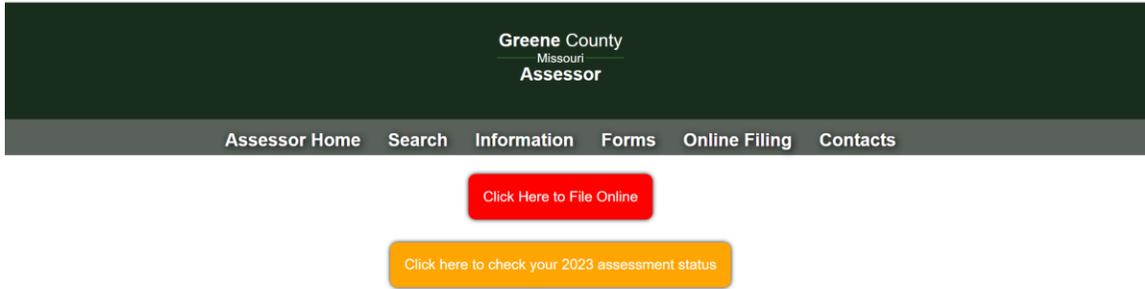

How to file your 2023 Personal or Business Assessments List:

- Online: File electronically file on the Greene County Assessor's website at, <https://greenecountymo.gov/assessor/>
- By Mail: Return the paper form to the Assessor's Office.
- In-Person: File in person at the Assessor's Office.

Assessments cannot be completed by phone or email.

This year Johnson added a new feature to the Greene County Assessor's website that allows residents and businesses to check if their Assessment has been received. "My goal is to help our residents and business owners as much as possible during the assessment process. This tool provides transparency on the status of your assessment list," according to Johnson.
