Wind	ELEVATED

DISCUSSION

A wintry mix will transition to snow through the day today, bringing 1" to 3" inches of snow and slushy accumulations on roadways. Precipitation should generally be all snow by 12:00 - 2:00 PM and clear by 6:00 - 8:00 PM. There is a 5 - 10% chance of freezing drizzle after the snow has cleared.

Northwest winds will increase behind the low pressure system today, with some gusts of 35 to 45 mph possible. This will cause some blowing snow to occur which will further limit visibilities.

Temperatures this afternoon will dip into the mid to upper 20's with wind chills into the single digits to teens this afternoon and tonight.

Minor to locally moderate road impacts are expected, especially along and north of I-44. These impacts may linger into Wednesday morning.
